Collection

La Chamba

Our black pottery is handmade in La Chamba, a village in the region of Tolima, Columbia. For over 300 years, 85% of the people living in this village have been working together to create ceramics, using ancestral techniques that have been passed on from generation to generation.

handmade,
100% natural

The artisans source a specific type of clay from the shores of the Rio Magdalena river. Once the clay is molded into its desired form, they are dried in the sun and then polished with precious stones. The objects are then placed in the oven at 800°C. Finally, the artisans start the smoking process using a combination of dried local spices. This final step gives the pottery its iconic black color.

A healthy kitchen

The clay retains heat and moisture enabling a slow, even cooking. Because the clay absorbs moisture, there is less harsh steam in the pot, so food is able to cook in its own juices and not dry out. The moist enclosed in the pot results in food that is healthier, tastier, and moist requiring less fat & liquids.

use & maintenance

Our cookware is not only beautiful, it's also very sturdy and will last many years with proper use and care.

Use : on gas or electric stove, in the oven and microwave. No induction.

Maintenance : Use of dishwasher allowed, yet not advised.

Material : 100% organic clay, no lead or varnish

Before you use your La Chamba pottery for the first time, wash it well and fill it up halfway with water. Then, place it in a gas oven for 30 minutes at 200°C.

This will prevent your pot from sticking during future use, and will allow for the clay to become stronger everytime it's exposed to heat.

“Through these products you will discover the artisans. Every moment they get away from their daily tasks, the women of the village spend on the creation of these objects.

In the shadow of a tree or late in the evening while the children are sleeping, you will find the women working on their creations. The sale of their products allows them to support their family.”
